Since 1939 numerous Scientific. Studies have been conducted to determine whether smoking is a danger to health. The trend of the evidence has been consistant indicates that there is a serious health risk. Research teams have conducted studies that show beyond reasonable doubt that tobacco smoking, particularly cigarette smoking is associated with a shortened life expectancy.

Cigarette smoking is believed in the development of lung cancer and cancer of the throat and is believed to be related to cancer of the bladder and of the oral cavity. Male cigarette smokers have a higher death rate from heart disease than non smoking males. female smokers are thought to be less affected because they do not breathe in the smoke so deeply.

Some competent physicians and research workers are less sure of the effect of cigarette smoking on health. They Consider that the increase in heart diseases and various forms of cancer May possibly be explained by other factors in the complex human environment – atmospheric pollution, increased nervous stress, chemical substances in proessed food, or chemical pesticides that are now being, used by farmers. in vast a to destroy insects and small animals. Smokers who develop cancer or lung diseases, they say, may also by coincidence, live in industrial areas or eat more canned food.

It might be helpful to look at what tobacco smoking actually does to the human body. Smoke is a mixture of gases, vaporized chemicals, Minute Particles of ash, and other solids. There is also nicotine, which is a powerful poison, and black air. As the smoke is breathed in, all these components from deposits on the membranes of the lungs.
